Preacher's Car Turns Over After Fatal Accident on Petersburg Road.

PETERSBURG, Va., Sept. 17.—One man was killed and several persons were seriously injured in an automobile accident on the Richmond and Petersburg turnpike, in Chesterfield county, about one mile from Petersburg. John W. Cummings was killed and is wife and daughter and Mrs. R. L. Matthews, Mrs. Bertie Languey and Miss Clara Brockwell, of this city, were injured.

Mrs. Cummings received two serious cuts on the forehead. Her daughter suffered a compound fracture of the leg. Mrs. Matthews received cuts on the arm and hip. Mrs. Languey was seriously hurt on the head and shoulders and Miss Brockwell was badly bruised about the body.

At the time of the accident R. L. Matthews, accompanied by Mrs. Matthews, Mrs. Languey, Miss Brockwell, and Samuel D. Rogers, the latter a member of the legislature from Petersburg, were on their way to Woodlands Church, Chesterfield county, of which Mr. Matthews is pastor, and where Mr. Rogers had an engagement to speak. When about one hundred yards from Cummings house, Mrs. Matthews' automobile was struck by an approaching machine and did not see Cummings and his wife and daughter, who were walking in the road, and the machine struck them.

In his efforts to avoid the approaching automobile, Matthews turned his car suddenly and it overturned.

Cummings, with his wife and daughter, was rushed to the Petersburg Hospital, but Cummings died on the way there. He was a native of Chesterfield county and about fifty years of age. He was survived by his widow, three daughters and two sons.

CAST LIGHT ON DARK SPOTS IN ENDESSCAVES

Illumination of Caverns Made Possible by Plans of New York Engineer.

LURAY, Va., Sept. 17.—The beauty of the endless caverns has been enhanced by the introduction of a modern lighting system.

The lighting of the caverns was planned and executed by Phineas V. Stephens, a consulting engineer of New York city, and one of the most beautiful of the underground rooms has been named in his honor, Stephens' hall.

Since 1879, when some boys hunting rabbits rolled away the boulders from the cave's entrance, the cave has been known locally. Picnic parties threaded their devious and gloomy way through the passage with candles, flares and lanterns in awe-struck wonder at the geological marvels. But it was not until electricity had transformed the cave's interior that the caverns became a mecca for automobilists and travelers from every part of the country.

Near the foot of Cavern Hill, the owners of the cave, Edward T. and Edwin J. Brown, are carrying out the plans of the engineer, erected a power plant supplied with two twenty-five horsepower gas engines driving two twenty-five-volt generators, storage batteries and two smaller engines for the lighting.

The flood system of indirect lighting is employed. The wires are carried in lead-covered cables, which are buried in the floor of the cave or follow the curves of the stalactites along the ceiling.

Already a second power plant five times more powerful than the first is being installed and the lighting systems are being extended as new passages are opened.

ANALYSIS FOR PERSONALITY IS NOVEL SCIENCE

Every Student Should Take Stock of Own Individuality, Says Writer.

By HARRIETTE GUNN ROBERSON, President, Robertson School of Personality.

In my recent motor trip across the country I was made to realize more than ever the demand there is today for assistance in the proper development of personality as a success-bringing asset. It is difficult for some people to understand what personality is and how it can be developed. The practical development of personality is the bringing out in the individual of the qualities possessed and making those qualities usable. The work of developing the personality of a student begins with a personality and character analysis to determine what qualities are dominant and most worthy of development.

For years wise men have urged upon the world the injunction "Know Thyself," without furnishing a practical guide to that knowledge. A successful leader of men advises: "If you are wise you will study yourself carefully; you will analyze all your talents; you will study the great fields of vocations. You will find a place for yourself where your strongest and best qualities will come into play."

In making this analysis of yourself remember the student who overvalues himself is wiser than he who undervalues himself. The former may at least attempt great things; the latter will always fumble over little things, because handicapped by doubt, fear and self-consciousness.

A personality wares analysis includes a listing of the definite qualities we have to sell, a knowledge and an appreciation of the world markets open to them, and their worth compared with market values and standards.

The personality wares you have to sell are:

1. Personal personality wares.
2. Bread and butter personality wares.

All the marvelous contents of literature, music and art are but the revelations of the riches of some personal life. All values go back ultimately to personality. The highest achievement of culture is the understanding and appreciation of great personalities. A rich personality enriches everybody who comes in contact with it. Personality is that indefinable charm that gives to men what fortune gives to flowers. If you have personality, cherish it; if you have not, cultivate it. For personality can be cultivated. When you meet a man who gives to you a vivid impression of a remark, the tone of his voice, expression of his countenance and perhaps a memory of a look into his part and won. It is this divine power to increase our personality day by day.
